

Editors' Most Wanted Vehicles for 2007

Every year, the Edmunds.com editors gather to ponder that eternal question, "What cars or trucks would we most want to park in our garage?" For the 2007 model year our editors have once again scoured the entire automotive spectrum looking for their favorite vehicles. What they've come up with are the Edmunds.com Editors' Most Wanted cars and trucks for 2007.

Convertible Under $25,000 Winner: 2007 Mazda MX-5 Miata

Despite the threat of the sexy GM wonder twins, the Pontiac Solstice and Saturn Sky, the Mazda MX-5's refined nature makes it the indisputable king of the $25K drop tops. Last year, Mazda gave its pint-sized roadster a full redesign. Now representing the car's third generation, it's roomier and more powerful, but still as fun as it ever was. Although tuned for a smoother ride than before, the 2007 Mazda Miata still changes direction like a roller skate and speaks to you clearly through the steering wheel and driver seat. And a new power-retractable hardtop (PRHT) version makes the MX-5 an affordable alternative to luxury cars similar in concept, as well as tough competition for all others in its segment.
